3/ 4 NEWS!

With another hectic week ahead, we are knuckling down in the Year 3/4 classroom!

This week we have been continuing to learn about traditional Asian stories and using our comprehension skills. In mathematics, we are tackling the very important topic of money! Students are learning to calculate money totals and change that may be required. You can help by given the students real world practice by letting them assist you with the groceries and identify the prices of different items. We had another fantastic Athletics carnival in our busy week but our class is determined not to let it affect our classroom learning or our homework!

5/6 NEWS

Geography: Diversity in Asia

Throughout this series of lessons students will further develop the ability to analyse and interpret geographic data and information to draw conclusions on the diversity of the world and in particular the Asian region. Part of their assessment portfolio focus will be the ability to represent and analyse data on diverse places in maps (using the cartographic conventions) and in a range of communication forms. This is a dynamic and intensely engaging body of work which I am sure the students will enjoy immensely.

Science: Physical Science

In this unit students will have fun with hands-on learning about the Physical sciences through investigating the properties of light, electrical circuits, electricity and energy.

Students will investigate electrical circuits as a means of transferring and transforming electricity. They will design and construct electrical circuits to make observations, develop explanations and perform specific tasks, using materials and equipment safely. Students will investigate the properties of light and the formation of shadows. Students will explore how energy from a variety of sources can be used to generate electricity and identify energy transformations associated with different methods of electricity production. They will identify where scientific understanding and discoveries related to the production and use of electricity has affected people's lives and evaluate personal and community decisions related to the use of different energy sources and their sustainability.

The Arts: Visual Arts 'Beyond Observation'

Students create and display a series of observational drawings and abstract one drawing using a grid drawing exercise. The use higher order thinking skills to respond, refine and reflect on the drawing process. Subject matter will be a cohesive blend of both science and geography visual stimuli.

3/ 4 NEWS!

With another hectic week ahead, we are knuckling down in the Year 3/4 classroom!

This week we have been continuing to learn about traditional Asian stories and using our comprehension skills. In mathematics, we are tackling the very important topic of money! Students are learning to calculate money totals and change that may be required. You can help by given the students real world practice by letting them assist you with the groceries and identify the prices of different items. We had another fantastic Athletics carnival in our busy week but our class is determined not to let it affect our classroom learning or our homework!

5/6 NEWS

Geography: Diversity in Asia

Throughout this series of lessons students will further develop the ability to analyse and interpret geographic data and information to draw conclusions on the diversity of the world and in particular the Asian region. Part of their assessment portfolio focus will be the ability to represent and analyse data on diverse places in maps (using the cartographic conventions) and in a range of communication forms. This is a dynamic and intensely engaging body of work which I am sure the students will enjoy immensely.

Science: Physical Science

In this unit students will have fun with hands-on learning about the Physical sciences through investigating the properties of light, electrical circuits, electricity and energy.

Students will investigate electrical circuits as a means of transferring and transforming electricity. They will design and construct electrical circuits to make observations, develop explanations and perform specific tasks, using materials and equipment safely. Students will investigate the properties of light and the formation of shadows. Students will explore how energy from a variety of sources can be used to generate electricity and identify energy transformations associated with different methods of electricity production. They will identify where scientific understanding and discoveries related to the production and use of electricity has affected people's lives and evaluate personal and community decisions related to the use of different energy sources and their sustainability.

The Arts: Visual Arts 'Beyond Observation'

Students create and display a series of observational drawings and abstract one drawing using a grid drawing exercise. The use higher order thinking skills to respond, refine and reflect on the drawing process. Subject matter will be a cohesive blend of both science and geography visual stimuli.

3/ 4 NEWS!

With another hectic week ahead, we are knuckling down in the Year 3/4 classroom!

This week we have been continuing to learn about traditional Asian stories and using our comprehension skills. In mathematics, we are tackling the very important topic of money! Students are learning to calculate money totals and change that may be required. You can help by given the students real world practice by letting them assist you with the groceries and identify the prices of different items. We had another fantastic Athletics carnival in our busy week but our class is determined not to let it affect our classroom learning or our homework!

5/6 NEWS

Geography: Diversity in Asia

Throughout this series of lessons students will further develop the ability to analyse and interpret geographic data and information to draw conclusions on the diversity of the world and in particular the Asian region. Part of their assessment portfolio focus will be the ability to represent and analyse data on diverse places in maps (using the cartographic conventions) and in a range of communication forms. This is a dynamic and intensely engaging body of work which I am sure the students will enjoy immensely.

Science: Physical Science

In this unit students will have fun with hands-on learning about the Physical sciences through investigating the properties of light, electrical circuits, electricity and energy.

Students will investigate electrical circuits as a means of transferring and transforming electricity. They will design and construct electrical circuits to make observations, develop explanations and perform specific tasks, using materials and equipment safely. Students will investigate the properties of light and the formation of shadows. Students will explore how energy from a variety of sources can be used to generate electricity and identify energy transformations associated with different methods of electricity production. They will identify where scientific understanding and discoveries related to the production and use of electricity has affected people's lives and evaluate personal and community decisions related to the use of different energy sources and their sustainability.

The Arts: Visual Arts 'Beyond Observation'

Students create and display a series of observational drawings and abstract one drawing using a grid drawing exercise. The use higher order thinking skills to respond, refine and reflect on the drawing process. Subject matter will be a cohesive blend of both science and geography visual stimuli.

3/ 4 NEWS!

With another hectic week ahead, we are knuckling down in the Year 3/4 classroom!

This week we have been continuing to learn about traditional Asian stories and using our comprehension skills. In mathematics, we are tackling the very important topic of money! Students are learning to calculate money totals and change that may be required. You can help by given the students real world practice by letting them assist you with the groceries and identify the prices of different items. We had another fantastic Athletics carnival in our busy week but our class is determined not to let it affect our classroom learning or our homework!

5/6 NEWS

Geography: Diversity in Asia

Throughout this series of lessons students will further develop the ability to analyse and interpret geographic data and information to draw conclusions on the diversity of the world and in particular the Asian region. Part of their assessment portfolio focus will be the ability to represent and analyse data on diverse places in maps (using the cartographic conventions) and in a range of communication forms. This is a dynamic and intensely engaging body of work which I am sure the students will enjoy immensely.

Science: Physical Science

In this unit students will have fun with hands-on learning about the Physical sciences through investigating the properties of light, electrical circuits, electricity and energy.

Students will investigate electrical circuits as a means of transferring and transforming electricity. They will design and construct electrical circuits to make observations, develop explanations and perform specific tasks, using materials and equipment safely. Students will investigate the properties of light and the formation of shadows.

Students will explore how energy from a variety of sources can be used to generate electricity and identify energy transformations associated with different methods of electricity production. They will identify where scientific understanding and discoveries related to the production and use of electricity has affected people's lives and evaluate personal and community decisions related to the use of different energy sources and their sustainability.

The Arts: Visual Arts 'Beyond Observation'

Students create and display a series of observational drawings and abstract one drawing using a grid drawing exercise. The use higher order thinking skills to respond, refine and reflect on the drawing process. Subject matter will be a cohesive blend of both science and geography visual stimuli.
